All Papers accepted by the conference will be published in the proceedings; in addition, authors of papers that are outstanding in quality and content will be invited to submit their works to a special issue of Singapore Economic Review (SER, indexed in SSCI), Journal of Financial Counseling and Planning (JFCP, indexed in Econlit), International Journal of Revenue Management (IJRM, indexed in Econlit), and International Journal of Sustainable Real Estate and Construction Economics (IJSRECE).

A BRIEF INTRODUCTION TO HONG KONG

Hong Kong became a Special Administration Region (HKSAR) of the People's Republic of China on July 1, 1997, after a century and a half of British colonial administration. It is strategically located at the mouth of the Pearl River Delta in Southern China. Bordered by the Shenzhen Special Economic Zone to the north, Hong Kong has a total area of about 1,100 square kilometers with a population of 7.3 million people. To the surprise of many visitors, this bustling city also features lush green hill slopes, secluded beaches, leisurely rural landscape and rocky shorelines.

Hong Kong is characterized by a high degree of internationalization, business-friendly environment, rule of law, free trade and free flow of information, open and fair competition, well-established and comprehensive financial network, superb network of transport and communications infrastructure, sophisticated support services, and a well-educated workforce complemented by a pool of efficient and enterprising entrepreneurs. As the economic and financial gateway to China, and with an efficient regulatory framework, low and simple taxation, and sophisticated capital markets, the territory continues to offer the most convenient platform for international companies doing business on the mainland.

It is the world's 13th largest trading economy and is the "Freest Economy of the World" as named by the US based Heritage Foundation for 21 consecutive years, and it ranks second in the world for competitiveness in annual IMD study; it was the world's fourth largest recipient of Foreign Direct Investment (FDI) flows, and was the world's 10th largest trading entity in merchandise trade in 2013; and it topped the World Economic Forum's (WEF's) Financial Development

Index in 2011 and 2012. In addition to its best-known as a shopper's paradise, Hong Kong has the world's most expensive airport (Hong Kong International Airport), the world's longest outdoor electric escalator (Central to Mid-levels escalator system), the world's longest road and rail suspension bridge (Tsing Ma Bridge), the world's largest cable car system (Ngong Ping 360), and the world's oldest double-decker tram (Hongkong Tramways),... etc. You will be able to experience all these things during your stay in Hong Kong.
